In 2013 Bringme Srl was born with the first seed investment.

In 2014 the trial of Jojob Carpooling starts and in March 2015 the service is officially launched.

Jojob meets the needs of home-work commuters, allowing them to share the journey by car and significantly reduce transport costs.

At the same time, Jojob member companies obtain certified data on the reduction of polluting emissions, they significantly improve the use of company parking and provide the company with a transport alternative.

Today Jojob is a leader in Italy and is also present in Spain with an international expansion strategy.

In 2011 I created one of the first carpooling portals in Italy. Bringme Social Carpooling aimed to facilitate the meeting between drivers and passengers for occasional medium and long distance journeys. (What Blablacar does today). From the Bringme project the Jojob product, dedicated to carpooling, was born.
